It's 1996 and the town of Regal, South Carolina, is going bankrupt. The town grew up surrounding the Regal Typewriter Company and, with the advent of the computer, nobody wants typewriters anymore. The town founder, owner of the Regal Typewriter Company, Colonel Beaumont, dies of old age and, having no heirs, leaves his entire estate to the town of Regal. Through much discussion, it is decided that, with the experienced talent on the city council, the best thing is to turn the factory into a shopping bazaar and the Colonel's large home estate into a posh hotel resort and spa.

On the council is an attorney, an accountant, a building contractor, an interior designer, a high school gym teacher, a real estate broker, and Daisy Biskett. Daisy is the owner of the local restaurant and has written and published a cookbook. Then there is Masood Habibi. He is the owner of the Habibi Fine Rugs, which always seems to be running a 20% off sale. Masood, being the clever businessman that he is, has his own agenda.

Greed sets in and everyone sees an opportunity to get rich quick. Finally, depleting the town coffers of all working capital, they must make an accounting at a town hall meeting, but they have backed themselves into a corner. Miraculously there is an anonymous buyer that wants to purchase the hotel resort at a very good price and quickly. However, the townspeople become suspicious after the council sells the hotel and restores the town's bank account with the proceeds. The townspeople rebel until finally, Daisy Biskett can't take it anymore. She hysterically announces that SHE is the buyer. She has made so much money from the sale of the cookbook that she is more than able to make the purchase. There is greed, fist fights, a secret sexual tryst, unrequited love, several 20% off sales and in the end; there is even talk of a bordello.

TVVC Donates Books to Library

Alex Gabbard, a member of the Tellico Village Vintage Vehicles (not pictured), has donated eight of the books he has written to The Public Library of Tellico Village. All of these books are of the automotive genre. There was also a donation of $30 in honor of each deceased member for the last five years, going forward the TVVV will continue this tradition. This donation will go towards automotive-related books which the Library will purchase; there will be a sticker in the front of each book designating this as a donation from the TVVV. The Public Library of Tellico Village sincerely thanks the TVVV for their generous donation.
